Henry and Caroline are named after Cogswell College's founder and his wife Who can resist some free 3D models? If you can't then you're in for a treat, in the form of a brace of 3D animatable character rigs that you can download right now.They come from the Digital Art and Animation students at Cogswell College (opens in new tab) in San Jose, as part of the school's in-house character programme, Project Avatarah (opens in new tab).These versatile rigs have been designed to be easy to use Named after the college's founder, Henry Cogswell, and his wife, Henry and Caroline are a pair of adorable characters that have been created to be simple to use while being extremely versatile with all the controls you're likely to need. They're designed to be used in subtle animations, with extreme actions and locomotive cycles.The bipedal characters feature full facial rigs, as well as detailed clothing control and secondary motion. They have IK/FK switching for limbs and spine, offer the ability to change the parents of controls mid-animation using space-switching, and their rotation orders are set up to reduce gimbal locks.There are more free rigs on the way from Cogswell's students Henry and Caroline are the latest in an ongoing series of 3D animatable rigs from the Cogswell College students. While you're grabbing them for free, you can also pick up Cogswell (opens in new tab), a fantasy winged quadruped character with believable weight, behaviour and aerial motion, and there are more on the way, including Toothy, a fierce big cat with detailed facial controls and a flexible spine, and Snowy, a versatile Bull Terrier.You can learn more about Cogswell College's Digital Art and Animation programme here (opens in new tab).Words: Jim McCauley (opens in new tab)Jim McCauley is a writer, editor and occasional podcaster, and is available for space parties.Liked this? Members of the Digital Human League have been working hard to cross the Uncanny Valley with the promise that any movement they make will be shared the entire CG community.They've now released the first batch of data for Digital Emily 2 (opens in new tab), a human representation that was unveiled at FMX 2015 by Christopher Nichols of Chaos Group Labs (opens in new tab).This includes:the model (in Alembic format)the textures (in EXR format)the shader (in OSL format)Digital Human League have also included a Maya (opens in new tab) scene with the shaders set up in VRay. The shader is broken up into individual nodes so that it is clear how it was built.Any artist that wants to access this data can do so for free, as long as it's only used for non-commercial purposes.The data continue to be refined so artists should pay attention to the Wikihuman and ICT websites. Chaos Group Labs' Twitter feed will be a good place for updates too. Download the data here. (opens in new tab)Like this? Read these!
